Submissions for the Society's Early Career Essay Prize 2023 are now invited

Deadline: 30 June 2023

The annual International John Bunyan Society (IJBS) Roger F. Pooley Early Career Essay Prize recognises the cutting-edge research of junior scholars in the field of early modern religion and dissent.

Criteria:

- The competition is open to PhD students and post-doctoral researchers up to two years after their viva.
- To be eligible, applicants MUST be members of the IJBS. Membership enquiries/subscriptions can be made via the Society's UK Treasurer: r.c.adcock@keele.ac.uk.
- Applicants can submit an essay of up to 8,000 words (e.g. part of a chapter or a draft of an article or a written version of a conference paper) by 30 June 2023 (as an email attachment). The word count includes footnotes, but excludes title, bibliography and any appendixes (which, however, should not be longer than the text of the essay).
- The name of the author, their affiliation and their role (e.g. final-year PhD student) as well as the word count should be indicated on the title page.
- A brief biography outlining the applicant's current research project (150 words) is to be included.

This year the IJBS particularly welcomes contributions discussing the emotional history, and history of emotions, of religious Dissenters during the Long Reformation (global perspectives are especially welcome). All submissions will be judged by members of the Society's Executive Committee who may ask other experts to join them. Candidates will be informed of the outcome by email within a month of the submission date. The winner will be officially announced on 1 September 2023. The winner will receive a certificate, a financial award of £300, one year's free membership to IJBS and a year's subscription to the Society's peer-reviewed journal: Bunyan Studies.

Please send all submissions by 30 June 2023 to the Society's General Secretary, Michael Arbino, via JohnBunyanSociety@outlook.com.
